

Sales Intelligence & Executive Reporting

Project Brief & Proposal

Selected analytical project focused on turning fragmented sales records into a concise management reporting system. The objective is to create a reliable view of sales performance, targets, customer and channel contribution, pipeline quality and the actions management should take next.

Objective	Create a management-ready sales intelligence framework
Analysis period	12 months
Duration	10 business days
Project value	850 € + VAT

1. Business Need

Management receives sales information from multiple sources but lacks a single view of performance. Monthly revenue is visible, yet it is difficult to explain whether growth comes from stronger customer acquisition, existing clients, specific channels or temporary large deals.

The project is designed to move reporting from descriptive totals to decision-oriented intelligence: what changed, why it changed, whether targets are being met and where commercial attention should be focused.

2. Required Inputs

Twelve months of sales or invoice data, customer identifiers, sales dates, product or service categories, sales channel, account owner, target values and available pipeline or proposal-stage information.

3. Scope of Work

The analysis covers data structuring, KPI definition, monthly and quarterly performance, target attainment, customer and channel contribution, pipeline quality and an executive reporting layer.

Workstream	Analysis	Output
Data structure	Clean and organize sales fields	Reporting-ready dataset
Sales KPIs	Revenue, growth, average deal, repeat sales	KPI framework
Performance	Monthly trend and target attainment	Performance view
Customer analysis	New, repeat and concentration	Customer intelligence
Channel analysis	Direct, partner, inbound and existing clients	Channel contribution
Executive reporting	Exceptions, insights and actions	Management summary
